As long as unscripted reality shows keep pulling in ratings, people will keep producing them. And the next one just might come from San Antonio.

A production company is holding a casting call later this week for a TV pilot featuring a hypnotist.

Boris Cherniak, known as "The Incredible Boris," and comedian Dave Mordal of "Last Comic Standing" fame will co-host the show.

Here's the premise: People get hypnotized in the comedy club and go out into the real world — and the cameras show the subjects interacting with unsuspecting bystanders.

Producer Marc Cerutti describes it as "Candid Camera" meets "Punk'd" meets "Boiling Points." One of the big names behind the project is producer John Feist, a veteran of "Survivor," "The Apprentice," "Casino" and "The Restaurant."

The casting call is taking place Wednesday and Thursday at the Rivercenter Comedy Club, before Boris' 6:45 p.m. show, and Thursday afternoon and Friday afternoon at the club.

Producers want people who can be hypnotized and are willing to be filmed.

Being funny while hypnotized would help, too.
